Dear marden4063,

OK, so if I understand the job based on my local shop it takes 6 hrs to replace the unit and then I'll need to pay them another 6 hours within 500 miles to change the oil or the warranty is no good. Is that right? I'm just trying to get a full understanding the the costs before I fix it or trade it off. Thanks for your time, Ann

Dear Iuv2ride49,

Ann,
Please dont take this the wrong way.We do not release any specific parts,or building techniques.Most of the time when these questions come in,its from our competition.They try to figure out why our business is booming,and there starving.I will say this,if your concerned about the PTO gear system,you wont get a better built,or better backed set up.We build our own gears because rhe factory screwed up and built them to weak.Why do you think they went to turbo in 2008?A shop does not have to install your new supercharger.Make sure you get someone who knows what there doing.(Sometimes its expensive to save money)All I can say is if you want a unit thats built to last,and backed with a 3 year warranty,order one of ours.I know you'll be glad you did.As far as the 500-1000 mile changing of the oil,you need to change it.We have a way of telling if you did'nt,and it will void the warranty on anything after 1 year.You need to get all the tiny metal fragments that develop during break in.If you any further questions let me know.Hope I can help,Gary

Dear marden4063,

Hello, I need one for my MINI but have a few Q's not addressed in your post. What type of seals do you use? How do you hold the bearing in the PTO Face plate? If I don't change the oil after 500 miles do I still have a warranty? Does a shop need to do the work for the warranty to be good? There's so much info out there about this damn car that I'm getting confused. I trust you can help me. Thanks Ann
